Q33. In response to the crisis in Syria the government has given over £1.1 billion since 2012 to more than 30 implementing partners (from the UN to the Red Cross) in order to aid those affected by the conflict in the region. With that in mind, do you think the number of refugees the government has pledged to take over the next five years (20,000) is too many, too few, or about the right amount?

Q34. Summary
		They have put my job at risk	They have made it harder to get a fair wage for the work I do	They have made it easier to find trades people or routine workers who do a reliable job at a reasonable price	They have put added pressure on public services like schools, hospitals and public housing at a time when they are overstretched as it is	They have added richness and variety to the culture of Britain and made the country more prosperous	Many organisations, including in the public sector, couldn't cope without them

Q47. As you may know, the government is committed to holding a referendum on the UK's membership of the European Union before the end of 2017 - that is, within the next two years.

Using a scale from 0 to 100, please indicate how likely you think you are to vote one way or the other,

where... "0" means "I will definitely vote for the UK to remain a member of the EU" "100" means "I will definitely vote for the UK to leave the EU" "50" means "I am completely undecided".

(A number between 0 and 50 means you lean towards voting for Britain to remain a member, and a number between 50 and 100 means you lean towards voting for Britain to leave).

Q47. As you may know, the government is committed to holding a referendum on the UK's membership of the European Union before the end of 2017 - that is, within the next two years. Using a scale from 0 to 100, please indicate how likely you think you are to vote one way or the other, where... "0" means "I will definitely vote for the UK to remain a member of the EU" "100" means "I will definitely vote for the UK to leave the EU" "50" means "I am completely undecided". (A number between 0 and 50 means you lean towards voting for Britain to remain a member, and a number between 50 and 100 means you lean towards voting for Britain to leave).

Q47. As you may know, the government is committed to holding a referendum on the UK's membership of the European Union before the end of 2017 - that is, within the next two years.

Using a scale from 0 to 100, please indicate how likely you think you are to vote one way or the other,

where... "0" means "I will definitely vote for the UK to remain a member of the EU" "100" means "I will definitely vote for the UK to leave the EU" "50" means "I am completely undecided".

(A number between 0 and 50 means you lean towards voting for Britain to remain a member, and a number between 50 and 100 means you lean towards voting for Britain to leave).

Q47. As you may know, the government is committed to holding a referendum on the UK's membership of the European Union before the end of 2017 - that is, within the next two years.

Using a scale from 0 to 100, please indicate how likely you think you are to vote one way or the other,

where... "0" means "I will definitely vote for the UK to remain a member of the EU" "100" means "I will definitely vote for the UK to leave the EU" "50" means "I am completely undecided".

(A number between 0 and 50 means you lean towards voting for Britain to remain a member, and a number between 50 and 100 means you lean towards voting for Britain to leave).

Q48. To what extent do you agree or disagree with each of the following statements regarding Britain's relationship with the EU?

Summary

Base: All respondents

		Q48. Summary
		Britain does best when it is a leading country within the EU	Britain can be just as prosperous outside the EU as it is within the EU	Leaving the EU would be a risk because we would lose the ability to co- operate on security and counter terrorism issues	Britain should be free to govern itself outside of the EU even if it means the country will be economically worse off	In an unstable world, European countries will be more secure by sticking together and promoting shared values	Leaving the EU would allow us to take back full control of Britain's borders
