Q. 8 The Government proposes to fund extra investment in universities by replacing the current system where most students take out loans to cover the costs of tuition fees with a new system of "top-up" fees for students.
This would allow universities to charge tuition fees of up to $£ 3,000$ a year, with different fees for different courses, and students would have to start paying back once they are earning more than #15,000 a year. Do you think that this sounds like a fair way to raise extra funding for higher education?
